SAILING
CAPE TIMES 26 NOV 1999

The Royal Cape Yacht Club (RCYC) is hosting a party. Tonight Dave Elcock stars in the role of Jim Morrison, Eric Wells will be gyrating to the rhythm of the Doors and Hanno Teuteberg, he of naval notoriety, contemplating the merits of a draft dodge.

day to recover as sailing is only scheduled for 11:30 on Sunday when the fleet will sail either to Barker's Rock or around Robben Island.

It's hard to beat last weekend's Dassen Island cruise, which was well attended by a fleet of 32 yachts who revelled in the absence of a biting south-easter as they dropped anchor off an island which was resplendent in its lush, green overcoat.

Of course there was lots of fun and games, crayfish being the sought after delicacy.

The prize for the best dressed scavenger went to Klaus Schade. The hapless "kreef", nobody knows whether the poor thing was still compos mentus, was dressed up gourmet style in a jacket and served up on a wooden boat as a skipper of the forthcoming MTN Cape-to-Rio race.

It's "peace" brother. This is after all the dawning of the age of aquarius, so let your hair down at the Elliot Basin as the RCYC, in all it's psychedelic splendour, is hosting a sixties bash. It's a great opportunity for those who were either in Vietnam or at sea and missed the whole revolution to make amends. The dress code is extremely informal, what one would wear as crew on the Rainbow Warrior, so it's flowers, headbands and granny shirts.

The over-indulgent have the whole of Satur-
